

Adverbial Clauses

Unless, as long as, only if, whether, even if in the event that, in case, as if, as though.

Wow, so many!! Let's go through them one by one and look for similarities and differences.

Unless and As long as - Basically the same thing, just negative and positive.

Unless you buy this now, you won't get a discount.

As long as you buy this now, you'll get a discount.

Unless _____

As long as _____

Only if - very similar to the examples above - just stronger!!!!!!!

Hurry!!! You'll get the bus ONLY IF you leave now. GO!!

_____ only if _____

Whether and even if - Super similar, just a tiny bit different.

Whether I go to the party or not, you have to, cause it's your birthday!

Even if I don't go, you have to, cause it's your birthday!

Whether _____

Even if _____

In the event that and in case - Be prepared for something to happen.

In the event that class is cancelled, you can post your homework on the Wiki.

In case the class is cancelled, you can post your homework on the Wiki.

In the event that _____

In case _____

Adverbial Clauses

As if and as though - They mean the same and you use them for unreal situations.

She looks as if she has seen a ghost. (She looks scared)

She looks as though she has seen a ghost.

She looks like she has seen a ghost.

as if

as though like

Correct the following sentences.

Unless you say sorry soon, she will speak to you again.

As long as you work hard, you will

Only if you eating healthily will you become fit.

Whether he comes to the meeting, he is fired.

Even if you like rock music or not, you should check out this band.

In the event that the weather is bad.

After the test she looking as if she in shock.

Adverbial Clauses